

The Akron Beacon Journal

September 4, 2006

Local & Opinion

Today's editorials

The working poor also deserve a wage increase. Donor disclosure for political ads makes mighty good sense.

B3

SEC.
B

The Beacon Journal
Monday
September 4, 2006

www.ohio.com/news

JEWELL
CARDWELL

Kylie Jane Long Fund

Elizabeth and Jason Long of Granger Township also suffered every parent's nightmare with the loss of their only child, Kylie, to a rare liver cancer when she was a year old.

Since then, her parents have formed a foundation to assist families who have a child in the hospital and funds projects to help pediatric patients.

"We made a point to decorate Kylie's room for her, and we want to do something more lasting for the other children in the pediatric intensive care unit" at Rainbow Babies & Children's Hospital in Cleveland, Kylie's mom said.

"One of our proposals is to work with a company called The Sky Factory to install backlit ceiling tiles above the children's beds, giving them the illusion of being outside."

In an effort to help the Kylie Jane Long Fund, Fussy Cleaners is donating 2.5 percent of September sales to the cause.

For more information on the foundation, please visit www.kyliejanelong.org.

Jewell Cardwell can be reached at 330-996-3567 or jcardwell@thebeaconjournal.com.